

Mills Lays Wreath on Wife's Grave

DECORATES WIFE'S GRAVE. The body of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, slain choir singer, was returned to its grave after autopsy which disclosed new evidence in murder probe. Photo shows James Mills, the widower, placing wreath on wife's grave. (Photo Graphic.)

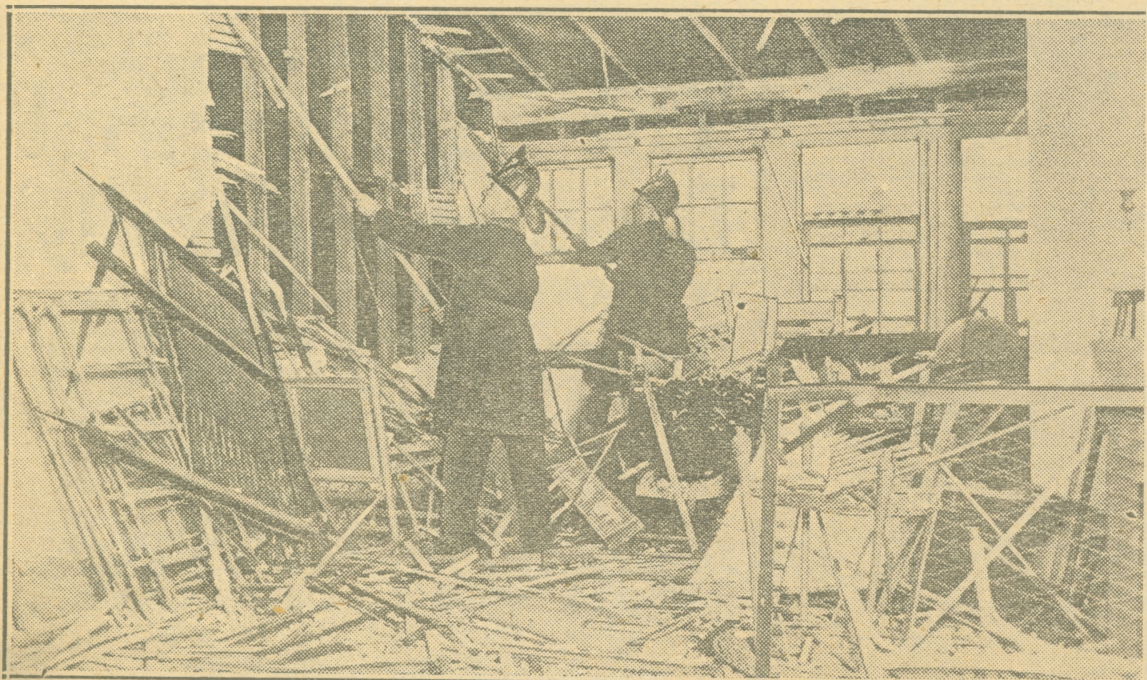

FIRST HALLOWEEN. Loren Johnston Langer, 8 months old, of River Edge, N. J., celebrates his first Halloween party tonight. He's not at all scared of hobgoblins or anything. (Fotograms.)

BANDIT VICTIM.

Bound and gagged by bandit in the kitchen of her Bronx home, Mrs. Mollie Deutch was robbed of $77. Photo shows her daughter, Julia, releasing victim on return from errand. (Photo Graphic.)

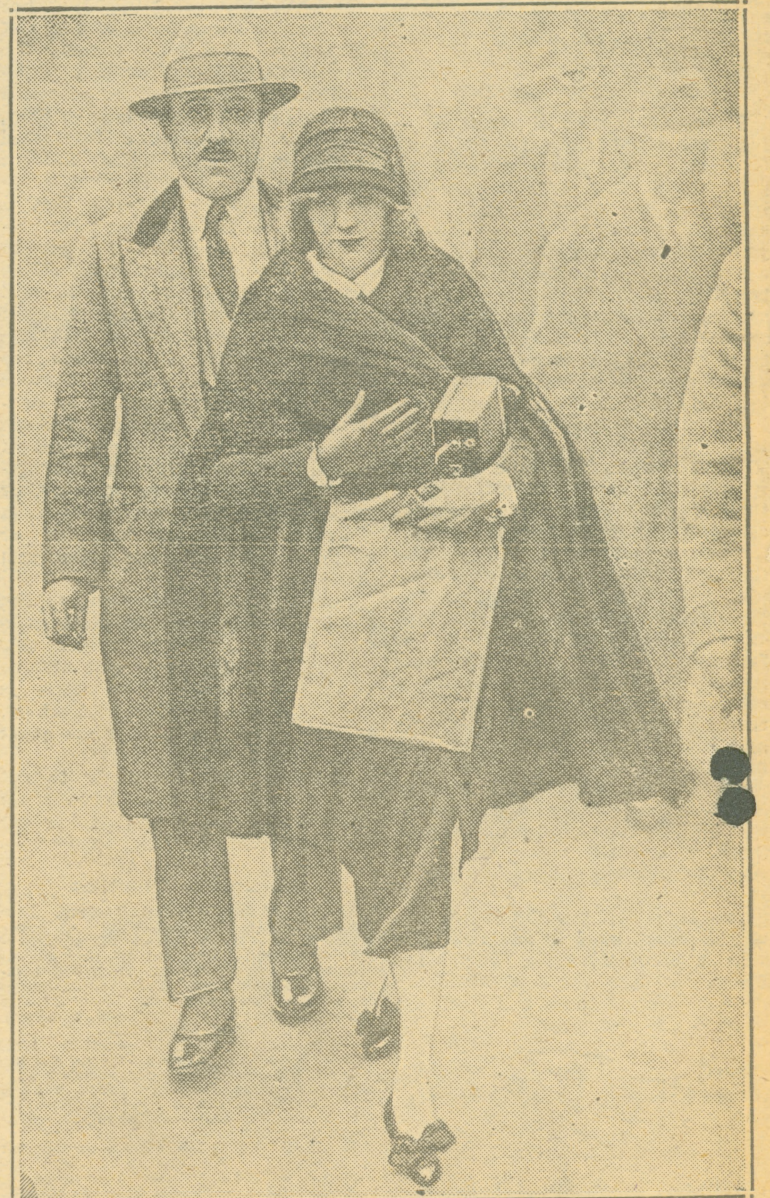

FIRE DESTROYS MANSION. Beautiful home at Ocean Parkway and Avenue K, Brooklyn, burned like tinder when blaze yesterday spread through entire structure before firemen arrived. Here's what's left of one of the rooms. (Photo Graphic.)

Smiles at 110 Year "Bit"

GOES UP RIVER SMILING. Sentence of 110 years for robbery and killing policeman couldn't take the smile off the face of young Marcus McMurtry (right). He's shown with Harry Townsend (left), sentenced to from twenty years to life for slaying sister, as they left for Sing Sing. (P. & A.)

VENGEFUL BEAUTY. Leonore Casanova, Broadway beauty, says she'll press case to the limit to have Arthur Gintasio, night club manager, punished for alleged beating. She's shown leaving West Side Court with lawyer. (Photo Graphic.)